TAPS Leads Advocacy Week on the Hill to Secure Congressional Support for Surviving Military Families

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE—Sept. 19, 2023

WASHINGTON — Roughly 100 military and veteran surviving family members, from ages 8 to 74 and representing districts across the United States, will gather in the nation’s capital during Gold Star Families Remembrance Week, the last week of September, to advocate for key legislation alongside the Tragedy Assistance Program for Survivors (TAPS). The two bipartisan-supported bills, the Love Lives On Act of 2023 and the Caring for Survivors Act of 2023, are legislative priorities for TAPS that would protect survivors’ financial benefits and improve access to critical resources.

The Love Lives on Act would allow widowed survivors to retain the Survivor Benefit Plan (SBP) and Dependency and Indemnity Compensation (DIC) — both critical financial benefits — upon remarriage at any age. Under current legislation, surviving spouses surrender these benefits if they remarry prior to the age of 55. “Young surviving spouses must choose between opening their hearts to marriage and retaining certain benefits,” shared TAPS President and Founder Bonnie Carroll. “These men and women endured an indescribable loss. They will always carry the title of military widow and widower; remarriage will not change that.”

The bill, which has been introduced in both chambers, would also maintain a survivor’s eligibility for certain education benefits and commissary and exchange privileges. Remarried surviving spouses would also be able to regain their own TRICARE health care benefits if that marriage subsequently ends. Senator Jerry Moran (R-KS), Senate Committee on Veterans’ Affairs Ranking Member and bill sponsor said, “As Gold Star spouses heal from their loss and choose to remarry, they should not have to worry about losing their survivors’ benefits provided by the VA and DoD.”

In addition to the Love Lives On Act, TAPS’ team of advocates will meet with lawmakers to discuss DIC — the monthly rate of compensation paid to survivors whose loved ones died in the line of duty or from a service-related injury or illness. The Caring for Survivors Act would adjust this monthly payment to bring it more in line with other federal program payments — DIC currently lags behind these comparable payments by 12 percent. “I will always defend the earned benefits and economic security of our military families who lost their loved ones in the line of service. These families have endured the unimaginable and giving them more economic certainty is something everyone should support,” said Jon Tester (D-MT), Senate Committee on Veterans’ Affairs Chairman.

This is TAPS’ Gold Star Families Advocacy Week culminating in a Congressional Reception, but the event has captured the interest of surviving family members and members of Congress alike, who have prioritized attendance for two days of meetings on Capitol Hill, from Sept. 26-27. TAPS staff, fellow advocates, and survivors will form 16 teams and canvas the halls, seeking support for the bills that will not only shape their lives after loss, but the lives of generations of survivors who will follow them.

In addition to this critical legislation, TAPS is also prioritizing two other bills: the Health Care Fairness for Military Families Act, which would fix inequity in military healthcare coverage for families with young adults, and the CHAMPVA Children's Care Protection Act, which would extend VA healthcare coverage for children and survivors of disabled veterans to the age of 26 — the same coverage required under private-sector insurance plans.

TAPS, which was also instrumental in the advocacy and passage of the PACT Act and ending the Widow's Tax, among other legislative advancements during its 30-year existence, is grateful for the time lawmakers are dedicating to the important conversation on survivor benefits. TAPS will continue to be the voice for U.S. military and veteran survivors, and encourages all survivors and supporters to contact their legislators to advocate for the passage of the Love Lives On Act, the Caring for Survivors Act, and both young adult health care bills.
