Used for thousands of years, the Inuit make Inuksuit to identify routes, to warn people of impending danger, to mark a place of respect, or to remember a good hunting or fishing spot. Most every Inuit constructs his own stone figure at some point, and they are a distinct feature in the Arctic region. They usually are around the height of a human being (5-7 feet tall).

Koinobori are carp-looking wind socks that Japanese people hang up to decorate on Children's Day (Tengo no Sekku) which is a National holiday celebrated on May 5th each year. Children's Day is a day to celebrate the happiness of children and to honor mothers."

- Toilet paper roll"
- Optional: tissue paper or ribbon in a few pretty colors (we used tissue paper)
- single hole punch,
- string, thin ribbon or wool
- a printer
- something to color with
- Scissors
- Glue
- Paper
- Optional: pencil or straw

Kpuvtwevkqpu<"

1. Print out the craft template of choice.
2. Cut out the template pieces. This is fairly easy for beginning scissor users (especially the large rectangular piece.
3. Glue the large rectangular piece on first to cover the tube.
4. Glue the eyes on either side of the tube so the straight edge of the eye lines up with the straight edge of the tube.
5. Glue the fins on either side of the tube. We put ours near the eyes, but you can place them wherever you think they look nice.
6. Cut about a dozen strips of tissue paper or ribbon about twice as long as your cardboard tube. The template includes some paper strips that you can use if you don't want to use tissue or ribbon.
7. Glue or tape the tissue paper onto the cardboard tube on the opposite end from the eyes.
8. Punch two holes, on opposite sides of the cardboard tube, and tie a piece of wool to each hole.
9. Use your wool to hang your carp up -- we tied ours to a blue pencil that wasn't sharpened.

- 1 Cup water
- ½ cup butter or margarine
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- 1 cup all-purpose flour
- 3 eggs beaten
- Vegetable oil for frying
- ¼ cup sugar
- ¼ teaspoon ground cinnamon (optional)

Ocvgtkcnu<"

1. To make the churro dough: Combine 1 cup of water with the butter or margarine and the salt in a saucepan and bring to a boil over high heat. Using a wooden spoon, stir in flour. Reduce the heat to low and stir vigorously until the mixture forms a ball, about 1 minute. Remove the dough from the heat and, while stirring constantly, gradually beat the eggs into the dough.
2. Heat about 2 inches of oil in a heavy, high-sided pot over medium-high heat until the oil reaches 360 degrees.
3. Mix the sugar with the cinnamon on a plate and reserve.

4. Meanwhile, spoon the churro dough into a pastry bag fitted with a large tip. Squeeze a 4- inch strip of dough into the hot oil.
5. Repeat, frying 3 or 4 strips at a time. Fry the churros, turning them once, until golden brown, about 2 minutes per side.
6. Transfer the cooked churros to a plate lined with paper towels to drain.
7. When the churros are just cool enough to handle, roll them in the cinnamon-sugar."
